

The David F. Kelly Bioethics Lectures

The David F. Kelly Bioethics Lectures invites nationally and internationally prominent scholars to lecture at Duquesne University each fall and spring semester on current and emerging topics in bioethics. The purpose of the series is to provide ethics leadership on the crucial issues in health care today.

For more information, contact
Glory Smith at 412.396.4504
or visit duq.edu/chce.

The Center for Healthcare Ethics
presents

The Role of Bioethics in Policy-Making in the European Union

Thursday, April 7, 2016 | 1 - 2:30 p.m. | 613 Duquesne Union

Maria do Céu Patrão Neves

*Full Professor of Ethics, Department of Philosophy
University of the Azores, Portugal*

For decades, bioethics has weighed in the drafting of public policies in the European Union.

In this presentation, Professor Maria do Céu Patrão Neves of the University of the Azores, Portugal, will discuss the various modalities of intervention of bioethics in the drafting of European public policies, illustrated by two cases of different nature—that of the GMOs in the environmental realm, and that of the clinical trials in the realm of biomedical research.

 DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY
duq.edu/chce